When Run-Down

NEW ORLEANS, La.—"My mother has always relied on Dr. Pierce's medicines and kept them for use in her family. When I was a girl, through over-work I became in very poor health. I lost in flesh, became very weak and nervous, my limbs and back ached all the time. I suffered from functional irregularity and was a physical wreck when my mother had me take Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and just a few bottles completely restored me to good health. I would advise all women or girls who suffer to give 'Favorite Prescription' a trial."—MRS. E. GIESLER, No. 710 Octavia Street.

Good looks in woman do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best women's tonic there is. It is 40 years old, and its age testifies to its goodness.

THE SANDMAN STORY

LESSON FOR MR. MOUSE

ONE day Mrs. Mouse, who had three small babies, found an old shoe, which she dragged with a great deal of trouble to where she lived in the attic.

"This will be the very thing for my babies to sleep in when I am away hunting for food," she said to herself.

Poor little Mrs. Mouse, she had a hard time of it, for her husband, Mr. Mouse, was a lazy fellow, never bringing home a thing, but always eating everything he found in the house and never thinking of his wife and children.

One day Mrs. Mouse tucked her three babies snugly in the shoe and told them to sleep until she returned.

Mr. Mouse was asleep behind a box nearby, and when he awoke he sniffed, for he smelt the leather shoe.

He ran to the shoe and sniffed. "Not much taste," he said, "but it will serve my purpose for my breakfast," and so he went on nibbling.

Nibble, nibble, nibble, went Mr. Mouse, and the first thing he knew he pulled out the tail of one of his own children from the toe of the shoe.

"Now what is that?" he said, looking at it with sharp eyes. "I don't like worms; I guess I will begin to eat on the other side."

Nibble, nibble, nibble, he worked, and then he jumped, for there was a tiny paw, and this time he awoke the baby mice, who began to squeak.

"Squeak, squeak!" cried the babies, "father is trying to eat us up." And just that minute along came Mrs. Mouse.

Long-suffering Mrs. Mouse had reached the end of her patience; she grabbed her husband by one ear and such a twist as she gave it. "You wretch!" she cried; "you would eat my babies, would you?" and she gave him a smart box on the other ear.

This time he ran behind a box, where he sat trembling and frightened for he had never before seen his little wife angry.

Every time he came near her Mrs. Mouse ran at him, and after a while he gave it up and away he went.

By and by, when the babies were asleep and Mrs. Mouse was getting ready to go out again, Mr. Mouse came tugging home a big piece of cheese and meekly laid it before his wife.

He did not even try to nibble it himself, but sat still and watched her eat, and when she had finished he said: "I know where there is plenty more, my dear; you stay at home after this and I will bring home the food."

"And to think," said Mrs. Mouse as she sat alone later, "that all this time I could have made him work if I had not been so meek. I wish I had boxed his ears long ago."

Every woman should study up a little on the subject of health and beauty. She need not spend much time over it—only a few moments a day, until she is familiar with the few principles that form the foundation of buoyant health and good looks. For even the most intelligent women are badly informed on such matters.

Then, knowing more about this subject of appearance and health the woman will know what sort of methods she needs to improve herself and will not waste time using tonics that the body so full of air it seems ready to burst. This is held and repeated, until the cheeks flush and the new blood runs through the veins, and the stomach seems rejuvenated. Study it up—and practice it.

Hay is what we are told to make while the ship sails.

Hay is divided into many kinds. We need to help divide it, so that it would cure enough to be stacked or put into a mow.

It would be cruel to stack or store hay that was still ill or under the weather.

Sunshine and air in abundance will cure almost the sickest hay.

There are alfalfa, clover, timothy, redtop, peanut, cowpea and John Hay, Jr.

Alfalfa will produce a almost as many crops of hay as a real estate agent will sell you in a year.

Clover is hard to cure.

It is inclined to be sultry and despondent and often has to be handled with a sulky rake.

If permitted, it will settle down in a sad, black heap and rot utterly.

We know of few things any more depressing to the sight than a field striped with clover windrows when there have been two weeks of cold rain on it.

Hay like that makes fine feed for a horse that one is anxious to lose.

Hay is also the first name of a popular brand of candy fever.

By and by, when the babies were asleep and Mrs. Mouse was getting ready to go out again, Mr. Mouse came tugging home a big piece of cheese and meekly laid it before his wife.

He did not even try to nibble it himself, but sat still and watched her eat, and when she had finished he said: "I know where there is plenty more, my dear; you stay at home after this and I will bring home the food."

"And to think," said Mrs. Mouse as she sat alone later, "that all this time I could have made him work if I had not been so meek. I wish I had boxed his ears long ago."

Every woman should study up a little on the subject of health and beauty. She need not spend much time over it—only a few moments a day, until she is familiar with the few principles that form the foundation of buoyant health and good looks. For even the most intelligent women are badly informed on such matters.

Then, knowing more about this subject of appearance and health the woman will know what sort of methods she needs to improve herself and will not waste time using tonics that the body so full of air it seems ready to burst. This is held and repeated, until the cheeks flush and the new blood runs through the veins, and the stomach seems rejuvenated. Study it up—and practice it.

FOOD FOR A FOUR-YEAR-OLD.

As growing children need food to supply the waste going on in their active little bodies, because they are constantly in motion, and to supply building material to build those bodies it is absolutely necessary that every mother should have an intelligent knowledge of the kind of food her child needs.

With the world full of literature on the subject there is no excuse for ignorance. The mother who is informed should see to it that her neighbor knows as well, for we know to be safe from all the evils of poor food and ignorance ourselves, we must help other people to be wise.

In many homes the price of milk keeps the poor mother from buying what her children really need. Other foods for a child from infancy through the school age may be slighted but milk should be a constant food.

Strong bones and teeth depend on calcium. The mother who is informed should see to it that her neighbor knows as well, for we know to be safe from all the evils of poor food and ignorance ourselves, we must help other people to be wise.

YOU NEVER CAN TAME A WILD-CAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous, Dangerous Calomel.

Calomel salivates. It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with your bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea. If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

A SURVEY OF NEW TAILORED STYLES

A SURVEY of the styles in tailored clothes, especially in suits, discloses a divergence of opinion among their designers. It results to the advantage of women, giving them a choice of at least three silhouettes, with the assurance that the most becoming one is just as much in the mode as the others. There are suits that ignore the waistline entirely with straight or flaring box coats, others acknowledge its location with belts that hardly interfere with the straight lines of long coats, and still others that are shaped in to follow the lines of the natural figure. Quite often a fullness in the skirt of the coat widens the hips and apparently diminishes the size of the waist. And besides these differences there is considerable latitude in the length of coats and skirts.
But in one respect nearly all creators of clothes seem to be fully agreed. Everything is more or less decorated—usually more. The plain, severely tailored suit has almost disappeared, and it would be hard to find an undecorated tailored frock.
The two suits which are shown here are popular types, showing considerable restraint in the matter of decoration. One of those deep, clear blues that look so rich in duvetyne was chosen for the suit at the left. It shows a little definition of the waist line with the skirt portion plaited at the sides and front forming a lengthened panel at the center of the back. Across the sides there are two bands of fur. There is a double belt fastening with large buttons finishing the sleeve. A wide collar of fur may be brought up about the throat and fastened.
In the suit at the right the coat hangs straight except for a little confinement at the waist line, where a double belt has an easy task. The skirt portion of this coat is split at the sides to the waist line and the sleeves follow this lead, being split at the wrist. The small muffler collar is made of cloth. Braid and embroidery combined make the handsome motifs that border the coat; they look very rich in the same color as the coat with their sheen of silk. A few bone buttons fasten the coat and collar and two of them finish off the sleeves.

Lovely Furbelows of Ribbon

EVERY year we are exhorted to begin our Christmas shopping early and every year we make ourselves a solemn promise to follow this age-old, spurring advice. And now along comes a flock of lovely accessories made of ribbons in anticipation of the holidays. It is evident that ribbons, which have always contributed gaiety and other delightful flavors to apparel, are about to do more than ever before. The new things made of them include familiar articles in new interpretations and a few luxuries that are novelties. The accessories shown here are selected because they are practical as well as pretty and every dainty woman takes such satisfaction in their ownership that they make perfect gifts, especially as they represent the work of their donors.
Lingerie bows of narrow and of wider satin ribbon made in light tints are provided with little gilt safety pins, sewed to the back of the bow, so that it can be easily taken off and put on, or changed from one garment to another. Two of these bows appear at the top of the group pictured, one of very narrow ribbon and one of ribbon about three inches wide. Wide and narrow ribbons are used on the breakfast cap of silk lace and for making the canopies. For these very wide and soft satin ribbons are used, with narrow widths and lace furnishing the trimming. On the lace-edged canopies three tiny sachet bags appear suspended from bows of narrow ribbons. Two rosettes and an elastic girdle finish up this small collection of furbelows. Flare elastic has satin ribbon shifted to form a ruff at each side and sewed over it with a rosette made of the ribbon, blossoming out at each side. It is a delight to work on these easily made and lovely gifts.

The Housewives Burden

When a woman is almost distracted from overwork, her home is in disorder, crying children, and on top of all is suffering from backache, bearing down pains, or some other form of feminine ills, then she should remember that hundreds of women in just her condition have been restored to health and regained their youthful strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and not rest until she has given it a fair trial.

Proof that it Restored the Health of These Two Women

Cairo, Ill.—"Some time ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times it would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine." Mrs. F. R. MATTHEWS, 3811 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.
Chattanooga, Tenn.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby came when I could no longer keep up. It strengthened my back and relieved me of the ill effect which so often develops at such times. That was my first experience with the Vegetable Compound. Years afterwards I took it during the Change of Life and got along so well I scarcely ever had to lie down during the day and seldom had dizzy, fainting spells. I am now well and strong, can do all my housework with perfect ease and it is a comfort to me to be able to say to other suffering women 'take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and be strong.' It will be glad to have you use my name if it will be the means of helping any one."—Mrs. R. A. FARMER, 608 Orchard Knob Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn.
